'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Railroad service is improving, there can be no question about that. We are informed by the Western Railway's committee on public relations that more than a billion dollars a year was saved during the last seven years by improvement in railway service.

The Redwood Empire association, guardians of one of the world's most scenic highways, is doing some excellent work in taking unsightly billboards off the state highways. They are leading a movement which, it is generally hoped, will become nationwide.

Another rose for California. A recent survey revealed that California has the most beautiful schools in the world and those in charge of the survey went further to say that the education dispensed inside of these beautiful buildings is among the best. Richmond is well in the lead for beautiful school structures and advanced education.

Strange are the ways of those who desire to depart from this world before their appointed time. Take the case of the San Francisco man who tried to end it all by jumping into quicksand. He was saved after a 26 hour battle. Maybe he expected to be saved and just wanted to see what the sensation of being next door to death was like.

Big game hunting in Richmond? Well, I guess. It is reported that a Richmond scribe has been seriously worried by gophers during recent weeks. The gophers, not content with ruining a lawn, turned their attention to valuable bulbs and flower plants. They refused to be squelched by poison gas from the exhaust of an automobile, they merely laughed at sulphur bombs and gingerly stepped about traps set for their benefit. However, one of them became too bold yesterday morning. He pushed his nose up above the ground while he was digging a hole. It is reported, but not verified, that the owner of the ruined lawn, bulbs and flowers got out his trusty 16-gauge, drew a bead and sent the gopher into ——— wherever it is that gophers go when they are not in lawns or flower beds.

Now if any of our neighbors see us parked on our lawn with every muscle tense, a shotgun at our shoulder and a look of grim determination on our face they will know that we are not flirting with the gallows but merely trying to decrease the gopher population of the city.

BURIAL AT ARLINGTON CEMETERY

WASHINGTON, Mar. 11—(U.P.)—Along the broad streets of the nation's capitol the body of William Howard Taft will be borne tomorrow—first to the capitol to lie in state, then out along the avenue of the presidents for the funeral services, and finally to his burial place on a gentle slope in Arlington National cemetery.

The machinery of the government will be stilled. Although it has been 17 years since Taft left the White House, the honors that are being given him in death are in keeping with rites for a president who has died in office. The universal high regard in which he was held, his occupancy of the two highest offices in the land, his straight-forward method of living, have earned for him this generous tribute from the nation he served for two-score years.

The bright comparisons of military equipage will accompany the former president to his grave, but the funeral services will be severely simple. Mrs. Taft asked that eulogies be omitted and poetry will take their place. The resounding, solemn phrases of Tennyson and Wordsworth will furnish the requiem.

Today, however, eulogies of Taft came from every hand. Perhaps the most impressive was from associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, who was 89 years old Saturday, the day Taft and associate justice Edward Terry Sanford died. Speaking from the bench, with the empty, crepe-draped chair of justice Sanford at his right, Holmes told in a broken voice of the passing of the two beloved members of the court.

3 KILLED IN RUM ORGY FIRE

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 10. UP—Three men were known to have been burned to death and a fourth was believed to have perished today in a fire which destroyed a three room farmhouse at Camp Lincoln, south of here. Au thorities said the men lost their lives as a result of a drinking orgy. Nine empty cans which, they said, had contained an alcoholic solution were found in the ruins of the fire.

One of the men was identified as Clyde McPherson who had rented the house. The bodies of the three men were burned beyond recognition. Search still was being made tonight for the supposed fourth victim. Origin of the fire was attributed to an overturned stove.

A negro roustabout, said to have fled from the house after the blaze broke out was sought by police tonight for questioning.

Stop Sign For School Asked

At the meeting of the city council last night Tom Nee asked that a "stop sign" be placed at Twenty-fifth street and Downer avenue on account of the children at the Grant school.

Nee said automobiles drove by at a very rapid rate, that there had been several near accidents, and unless traffic was curbed it was only a matter of a short time when some child would be killed.

The request was referred to City Manager J. A. McVittie and City Engineer E. A. Hoffman

Bon To Serve Term In Folsom

YOUTH MOVEMENT OF WORLD TRACED AT Y. M. C. A. BANQUET

The youth movement taking place in America, Germany, and Russia was interpreted at the annual Richmond Y. M. C. A. banquet last night by Dr. Tully Knowles, president of the College of the Pacific at Stockton.

Dr. Knowles stated that he believed the youth of today had exactly the same faults and fine characteristics that belonged to the youth of yesterday, only under other conditions. He pointed out that the American youth movement has been guided by associations such as the Y. M. C. A., Boy Scouts, Y. M. I. and Girl Reserves. The speaker pointed out that in Germany the youth movement has not been guided by the older generation, but that it has arisen spontaneously of itself out of the chaos of the recent war. In speaking of Russia, Knowles drew upon his own experiences in Russia recently when he visited that country. He stated that there is a rapid youth movement in Russia, but that it is being injected with the spirit of Communism. In conclusion, Dr. Knowles stated that the older generation should take close notice of what is happening in the youth movement in the countries of the world.

LOCAL TWINS CONFUSE PILOT

Because Donald and David Shoemaker, 1024 Barrett avenue are twins, and look exactly alike, they are now taking a course in aviation at an Oakland flying school.

Several days ago Donald reported to the Oakland school and was enrolled in a course of flying. Leo Biegger was named as instructor.

While Donald went into the school offices to sign his final papers, David leaied against a fence and watched the airplanes.

A plane piloted by Biegger drew up and the pilot raised his goggles and motioned for David to get into the plane.

"I'm not the fellow you want," David protested.

"G'wan," Biegger replied, "don't try to kid me. Get into the bus."

In spite of David's protests, he was loaded into the plane, the safety belt was strapped around him and a helmet and pair of goggles put on him. Biegger took off and for half an hour circled about, letting David "get the feel of the plane."

When Biegger landed he was greeted by Donald, who stood near the hangar, watching the plane. It took half an hour of explaining before Biegger could believe that Donald and David were twins and that he wasn't "seeing double."

"If you hang around, David," the pilot said, "there's going to be all kinds of mixups."

But David solved the problem. He's signed up for the course.

STURGIS GOT $13,000 FEE

OAKLAND, Mar. 10—That he received fees for legal advice totaling nearly $13,000 from paving contractors during the last two and a half years, was today told the Alameda county grand jury by Commissioner E. M. Sturgis.

Sturgis submitted the books of his law firm to investigators only under a promise from District Attorney Earl Warren that details of the legal transactions would not be made public.

According to the evidence, Sturgis was paid $10,000 in fees for legal advice in connection with Oakland paving contracts, and $3000 for such services on jobs outside the city.

Commissioner W. H. Parker, who waited outside the chamber while Sturgis was testifying, again refused to testify on the grounds that it might incriminate him.

While Sturgis was before the grand jury, James Austin, concrete foreman of the Columbian Park drive job surrendered to Oakland police and was released on bail of $2500.

Austin is named in a point indictment with Harry Lesser, San Francisco contractor, and A. A. Horwega, superintendent of construction. They are charged with puting Frank Phillips, city paving inspector, on the payroll under the name of "F. Rose."

The trio will appear before Superior Judge Homer R. Spence tomorrow for arraignment.

J. J. Collier, J. L. Davis and A. R. Shurtleff, deputy sheriffs, and Frank and Jack Gardella, reputed Livermore bootleggers, appeared before Judge Spence today, and pleaded not guilty in answer to a joint indictment charging graft. Their trial was set for April 7.

Local Man Fined At County Seat

MARTINEZ, March 10.— John Laboda, 41, of Richmond, M. T. O'Conner, of Berkeley and George W. Bins of Oakland, arrested on separate charges of driving while under the influence of liquor, were today faced with the alternative of paying a fine of $200 each or spending 200 days in jail. They all expect to pay the fine, which was assessed on a reduced charge of reckless driving.

Laboda, according to police, was arrested after he had ditched his car twice, by Traffic Officer M. L. Barbee.

O'Conner was picked up by Barbee and Traffic Officer C. H. Nissen, when according to police, he was speeding 56 miles an hour along the highway near the Tank Farm hill.

Bins was arrested near Rodeo.

TWO KILLED, 86 RESCUED IN EASTERN MINE BLAZE

STEUBENVILLE, O., March 10. —UP—Dozens of rescue workers risked their lives late today in the flame swept recesses of the Wolf Run mine at Amsterdam, near here, to rescue 86 men who were trapped beyond the flames.

There were two fatalities, both from suffocation. One man, G. Allman, was burned seriously. He told rescuers he walked through flames for what seemed a mile. His condition is critical.

Several rescued miners were unconscious when they reached the surface but all were revived.

The fire, which started at 2:30 p. m. when a trolley wire broke, short circuited and ignited coal dust was burning late tonigh, and firemen feared great damage would be done.

Forty of the miners escaped without outside aid through emergency exits, and 35 others were removed later by a rescue crew of the U. S. Bureau of Mines from Pittsburgh.

The miners were working about a mile from the shaft, 300 feet under the ground, when the fire started early this afternoon.

Mine officials were conducting an investigation.

ELEANOR BOARDMAN, the screen celebrity who was fined $2000 for attempted income tax evasion. With the back taxes and penalties, Miss Boardman payed the government a total of $15,000.

PROTEST ON GAS LAW HAS SHORT LIFE

A peculiar situation existed at the city council meeting last night as the members of the council thought they had a protest against the new ordinance, regulating the storage and handling of petroleum products, but when the hearing was over they found they had nothing before them.

There was a protest read, which was followed by another protest in which the same men asked that their names be removed from the first protest.

As a result Councilman J. N. Hartnett moved that both protests be filed. The motion was adapted and the ordinance will remain in force.

A protest was first read, signed by 18 garagemen and service station operators in which they objected to certain provisions of the new gasoline ordinance. Their chief grounds were against purchasing patented safety cans, the purchase of three gallon fire extinguishers, and the lifting of their motors four feet from the floor.

Next came a second protest in which 17 of the 18, who had signed the Scott R. Welch protest, asked that their names be removed from the Welch document, as the ordinance had been misrepresented to them, and they were satisfied with the new law.

Then came Hartnett's motion which killed the protest.

Reports Received By City Council

Many departmental reports were filed with the city council at its meeting last night.

The tax collectors report showed collections for the past month of $6,811.22.

The auditors report showed a balance of $188,679.87 and the treasurers report a balance of $219,355.52.

In February the receipts of the plumbing inspectors office were $29.50.

The fire department report showed losses in February of $14.00 most of which was on buildings.

SOFT DRINK LICENSE

The city council last night granted a permit for a transfer of the soft drink license of C. J. Kilpatrick from 1012 Macdonald avenue to 419 Macdonald.

CITY DELAYS PASSING OF ORDINANCE

Whether the city council, after additional consideration, finally decides that the ordinance regulating what is termed as "objectionable industries" should be adopted, or it is decided that it is poor legislation, it is practically assured, that the new cannery, represented by Attorney Tsar N. Califee, will locate on an eight acre tract of land near Point Molate.

When the ordinance came up at the meeting of the council last night Councilman J. N. Hartnett asked if there was not some other way that objectionable features of factories could be controlled, other than by such a measure. He was doubtful if it was good legislation. "We are purely an industrial city" said Hartnett, and it does not seem to me that this council should adopt any law that would be an affront to new industries, or that would tend to drive them away. Hartnetts suggestion was that the matter be further considered, and on his motion, the proposed ordinance went over for another week.

To Employ 200

The new industry that seeks a location in Richmond is the Golden Gate Packing company. It proposes to erect a plant that will employ over 200, at the start and this number will be increased as the plant is expanded.

City Engineer E. A. Hoffman, informed the council last night that he had been making tests of the tides, in the vicinity of Point Mo-

BOY SCOUTS LAUDED BY HOOVER IN RADIO TALK

WASHINGTON, Mar. 10—(U.P.)—President Hoover lauded the "constructive joy" of life by camp-fire and stream and stressed the responsibility of the individual to the state in an address delivered here tonight at a dinner given by the Boy Scouts of America.

The president, himself the father of two boys, apparently looked back on his own boyhood and painted a clear picture of youth's delight in contact with the wide out-of-doors. The joys of field and stream are becoming less accessible to that "primitive animal," the American boy, but the Boy Scout is doing much to open "the portals of adventure" to him, Hoover said.

Then adopting a more serious note, the president spoke of the responsibility of citizenship, saying:

Lauds Boys

"We assure ourselves that the cure of illiteracy and the fundamentals of education are the three R's—Readin', 'Ritin', and 'Rithmetic. To this we must add one more R, and that is Responsibility—responsibility to the community—if we are not to have illiteracy in government.

"The conviction that every person in the Republic rests solely upon the willingness of everyone

SCRIBE GIVEN MARKED BILLS

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 10—(U.P.)—An asserted plot to extort money from prominent local men on a threat to publish facts concerning the Julian Petroleum corporation collapse was said to have been broken late today with the arrest of Morris Lavine, newspaper reporter, while he was carrying $75,000 in marked currency.

Lavine, a star writer and investigator for a Los Angeles morning paper, was arrested in the office of Charles Crawford, politician. Blayney Mathews, assistant chief investigator for the district attorney's office, made the arrest.

Officers were said to have been hidden in Crawford's office and to have witnessed Lavine accept 75 one-thousand dollar bills in two packages—$25,000 in one package and $50,000 in the other.

Lavine was said to have claimed that he merely was acting as messenger for Miss Leontine Johnson, former secretary to S. C. Lewis, who was president of the Julian corporation. Investigators claimed, however, that Lavine was to have received the $50,000 and Miss Johnson the $25,000.

Shortly after Lavine was arrested, Miss Johnson was taken into custody.

Plan Told

District Attorney Buron Fitts said that Lavine and Miss Johnson formed a plan whereby Lavine threatened to publish a series of articles exposing inner workings of the Julian corporation which occurred when 5,000,000 shares of stock were over-issued.

The intention, it was charged, was to extort money from Crawford, Kent Parrot, politician and lawyer, and Abe Morris, wealthy broker and financier. Then, it was said further, they planned to make

They Hug Their Chains!

THE Great American Wife can do her smiling early. Recently a New York newspaper printed the following precious headlines:

"Nebraska Husbands in Revolt Warn Wives Who's the Boss,

"Issue Declaration of Independence of Home Rule.'"

Underneath appeared a despatch from Fremont, Neb.,

Telling all about how the married men of Fremont have resolved

That never any more—at least, hardly ever—will they be domestic slaves.

No, indeed, for haven't one hundred and fifty of them already signed up

As charter members of the Married Men's Protective Association,

Organized solely to keep henpecked males from being led around by their wives?

The association, it is circumstantially related, had its origin

In the Fremont shops of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad.

Now every department in the institution is represented,

And Archie Adams is President.

What is said to have got Fremont husbands all hot and bothered

And ready to strike for freedom

Is the pathetic case of one of the men in the shops,

Who said that he had to go home and take care of the baby

While his wife went to a bridge party—

Of course, it's perfectly all right that millions of wives have taken care of the baby

While their husbands went to poker parties!

Well, anyhow, the Fremont Married Men's Protective Association has a pledge card

To be signed by husbands and wives—

The pledge provides that the husband has the privilege

Of being out two nights each week, without having to make any explanation—

But, since the pledge also provides, with surprising consistency,

That the wife has the same privilege—

It occurs to us that some men in Fremont will still stay at home to mind the baby

While wives play bridge!

What is, however, the real giveaway of the revolting husbands—

The pathetic fallacy of their poor dear Protective Association—

Is their stipulation that no newlywed will be eligible.

No man, they plausibly argue, until he has been married at least two years,

Comes to realize that he needs independence—

It may be so, but, if realization dawns on him only then,

It dawns TOO LATE—

And, as a revolting husband, he'll be a total loss!

For already his wife has fitted the velvet glove so neatly to her iron hand

That its firm pressure is practically painless!

If she is the least bit clever, she learns in two years how to manage her husband so well

That most of the time he doesn't know he's being managed—

Hers, indeed, is the art that conceals art!

She makes him so comfortable, so happy,

That he's more than willing to "humor the little woman"—

In the phrase that saves his face.

Give any devoted wife two years of a husband,

And if, by the end of that time, she hasn't succeeded

In regulating his diet, his wardrobe, his budget, his social life, his bridge game, the way he drives his car—

And in making him LIKE it—

She's a wife who is singularly lacking in tact,

Or who can't be bothered!

Chester T. Crowell, devoted husband and father, has a piece in the current Plain Talk

In which he vows and declares that, whenever a woman says of a man, "I didn't know he was married"—

The lady is simply telling one!

If the lady is, or has been married, herself,

We think Mr. Crowell is perfectly right.

There is a certain housebrokenness about a husband

Which every woman once responsible for teaching it

Cannot fail to recognize in every man to whom some other woman has taught it—

It's the mark of the benedict!

As Mr. Crowell himself says,

"No matter how many love affairs a man may have had

"He remains—even to my poor, astigmatic, male eyes—half baked

"Until he has experienced marriage."

It's true that he just doesn't know things—

He doesn't know, for instance, about rushing to make sure the windows are down

When the thunder shower comes up;

Or about stopping even the mildest naughty story, after starting it,

When a shrewd feminine eye reminds him

That Aunt Emma, the Sunday school teacher, is dining with us to-night;

Or even about that first law of married life—

The law of catching the last train home, no matter how marvelous the party!

Oh, there's an experienced, disciplined, responsible, wise look in a husband's eye

That comes of having been trained and managed and—yes—bossed, gently but firmly, for his own good!

And doesn't he know it!

Maybe—as in the case of this Nebraskan Married Men's Protective Association—a few husbands, here and there, now and then,

Listen to the call of the wild,

And make a futile gesture of rebellion against their domestic tyrants.

But most American husbands, most of the time, hug their chains!

They like to be bossed—or, let us say, managed—for their own good, by their affectionate and sensible wives,

And the proof is that, if most husbands didn't like it,

Why would they stand it?

Not theirs the ringing challenge, "Liberty or divorce"—

What they'll tell the world is, "Mother knows best!"

ALMOST THE OLDEST STORY

Since leaving you I have found out
That what I did was wrong. No doubt
You place the blame on me, and I
Have no desire to deny
That fact. But, dearest, you did not Appear really to care a lot;
You let me go, you did not say,
"Reconsider, dear, and stay
"A little while, I'm not so bad."
You were not even mildly sad.
And thus two hearts are newly broken—
There was no need, if you had spoken. . . .

GATES HEBBARD.

The average woman bridge player is probably better than the average man. —George Reith, champion contract bridge authority.

The stronger sex.

Women and Criminals Seek to Appear More Youthful.—Headline.

Never in all its columnar life did THE WOMAN OF IT say anything as mean as that about men!

Flowers on Suits

SPONSORED by the most impressive of the French couture, flowers will blossom forth again this spring, particularly on the lapel of the tailleur. A change of hat, a change of blouse, gloves, and a flower work wonders with the two-piece suit. The type of hat will give the same suit a formal or an informal air and similarly a boutonniere will express a mood. As if doubtful of its final acceptance an occasional flower supplies the lingerie note on the daytime frock of solid color flat crepe. The effect is well worth trying as a relief from the many forms of the collar and cuff.

FOLLIES OF FASHION

Cap Sleeves, Capes Broaden Shoulders

By Marguerite Barnes

THE short woman with shoulders broad in proportion to her height should not wear the little puff sleeves that are becoming so popular. They give an extremely broad effect, looking almost as though they were padded. The cape and sleeve at the lower left create the same illusion. The same woman in small, three-quarter bell sleeves will look much better and be just as fashionable.

Spring Tonics for the Face

THOUGHTS of spring toggery . . . plans for revamping the living room . . . dreams about a new car. But what of our spring faces? Many a chic costume has been robbed of all becomingness by the face that went with it. Rather, by the face that did not quite "go" with it. Spring, you know, is cruel to a face. The gold bright all-revealing light of spring and the sharp contrast offered by vivid spring flowers and colorful spring clothes and gay motor cars. Poor face with its burden of body poisons showing through—the ugly accumulations of winter inactivity and stuffy houses and sooty air!

Let's pep up our faces to match the new season and the alluring new duds. Let's treat our skins to some tried and true spring tonics!

For strictly local use there's nothing more effective and nothing quite so quick-acting as a stimulating lotion or cream. It brings the blood dancing to the tissues, renewing them, rejuvenating them. Like magic the skin is cleared of sallowness and muddiness, the pores give up their clogging matter and begin to breathe and then they become small and invisible. Stimulating beauty preparations spell radiance for the complexion.

However, these fine and splendid effects cannot endure without the help of sound inner health. The digestive apparatus must be in smooth working order. Elimination must be thorough and regular. The blood stream must be clean and rich but not too rich. All of which brings us to a discussion of internal treatments.

Let the system have its fill of fresh fruits and vegetables, now when the system is most in need of them. Eat oranges, plenty of them, and grape fruit too. Quench thirst with orange juice, grapefruit juice and unsweetened lemonade. Of course, drink lots of water.

Salads should play an important role in the daily diet at this season, and red meats only an occasional role. If you can, abstain from red meat for a week at a time. This department knows several people who manage to do without red meat for periods of six months to a year. And their skins are flawless. Their eyes are like a romping child's.

Next in importance to diet comes—surprise! surprise!—exercise. Even a good brisk walk is a tonic to the skin, not to mention its effects upon the figure and the disposition. Never heard of walking to cure "nerves"? Oh, my yes! But more about that some other time.

Evening Wraps

WITH chiffon prints forming innumerable afternoon and evening gowns for summer, the formal wrap will be short and cape-like, designed with fulness over the shoulder to accommodate the elbows. Attractive shawl, cape and wrappy models without fur will be worn in transparent and panne velvet and in satin. The white wrap is now worn at resorts with the white or pastel gown.

Caligula Debunked

We are not likely to hear much about the galleys of Caligula, which were supposed to lie at the bottom of Lake Nemi. It was said that the galleys contained an enormous treasure and a mass of statues and art objects, which the profligate Roman Emperor had collected and transported aboard his floating palace. In spite of the fact that Papal archaeologists sent a discreet warning to the Italian Government saying than one of the Popes, about a hundred years ago, had had the so-called galleys at the bottom of Nemi investigated, Signor Mussolini ordered the lake to be dried up, promising the world a spectacle of the kind that came to light with the opening of Tut-ankh-amen's tomb in Egypt. Caligula has always had a "bad press." The galleys were said to have been the scenes of unheard-of orgies, and rumor had it that they were sunk by order of the Emperor at the climax of a tremendous Bacchanal. The galleys are exposed to the light of day once again. The process has cost a good sum of money. And what is the result? Just another boat, or rather the wreck of it. Nothing particularly striking about its dimensions, construction or luxury. With the best will in the world Caligula's orgies could not have been the stupendous mass-affairs that have been described with great chop-licking by various chroniclers, at any rate not on board of that awkward little tub. There is ample reason to believe that Caligula has been the victim of a deal of calumny. The "monster" who appointed his horse Consul of Rome was probably just another practical joker. In the mean time the debunking of the galleys shows that maybe some other episodes in the imperial history might go up in thin smoke if some lucky archaeological discovery came to shed a little light. Why, for instance, shouldn't the burning of Rome by Nero have had for its object to get rid of a mass of slums to improve traffic conditions?

Standardization

Standardization is a thing that the French hold in horror. To them it's an American product and synonymous with "fordization." Many writers in the public prints regularly devote long columns to the subject, usually to point out the dangers it contains to French individualism and French art. The new suburbs of Paris, long rows of perfectly similar apartment houses, are cited as archtypes of standardization, and ugly enough they are. Nobody will quarrel with that. But then, the same anti-standardization crusaders overlook one matter which certainly hasn't come from America, and that's the street names in the smaller French towns and even in Paris. Each town has its Avenue Foch, its Boulevard Clemenceau, its Joffre Street, its King Albert Square, its Marechal Petain Alley, &c. Take the famous Avenue du Bois de Boulogne in Paris itself, it is now the Avenue Foch. It used to be the Avenue of the Empress Eugenie. The Place de la Concorde was once the Place de la Republique, before that the Place de Peuple, before that the Place Louis XV. One of the old houses abutting on that grand square still bears all the names. The worst of it all is that as the Locarno spirit gets under way and the era of eternal peace is ushered in one of these days, the names will have to be changed again. Avenue Foch will become the Avenue of Disarmament, the King Albert Square become the Square of Universal Brotherhood and the Clemenceau Street will be turned into the Street of the United States of Europe. The French standardize at each epoch and have been doing so for a long time.

Dreyfus Forgotten

That stormy November night when the coffin of Georges Clemenceau was carried from the humble apartment house on the Rue Franklin, a small group of spectators, mostly policemen, photographers and newspaper men, braved the torrential downpour to witness the exit of the "Tiger." The group was split in two on both sides of the house entrance. On one side the Prefect of Police, officials and several Ministers of the Government. On the other side the reporters and passersby. "Look," said some one behind us, "there is Capt. Dreyfus!" "Where?" asked another voice. "The little old man in the raincoat." Dreyfus, in fact, was among the official group on the other side of the door. The first voice continued: "Which Dreyfus is that? The banker?" It should be added that the Dreyfus name is a very common one among the Jewish families of Paris and that most of the Dreyfuses are big business men or bankers. "Capt. Dreyfus," resumed the first voice. "Only a Captain at his age?" "Well," continued the second, "he has been promoted, but he will always be Capt. Dreyfus, of course. He is the man of the famous affair." "Oui, oui," came back the first, "you mean the fellow who caused some officers to be condemned to prison for not attending mass. Of course I remember now!"

You and Your Child

Little Liars

"MY CHILD'S an awful liar," a mother said to me recently. And I wanted very much to retort: "What else can you expect?" because I happen to know this woman's practices.

"I'll take you to the movies this afternoon if you eat all your cereal," she tells her child in the morning; but when afternoon comes she has made other plans and calmly forgets her promises. "I'll spank you," or "I'll tell father" are her constant threats; but does she ever carry them into execution? Very, very rarely.

One night the little girl insisted that she wouldn't go to sleep until brother went to bed also. "He is in bed," said her mother. And two minutes later a fully clothed brother bounded into the room.

How many times has this little girl been instructed to tell unwanted callers or tradespeople that "mother isn't home," when mother was only a few feet away!

Again and again the child has heard her mother tell the street car conductor that she isn't five yet, although her seventh birthday is fast approaching.

"I'll take you to the movies if you don't tell father," this mother sometimes says. "Father doesn't want you to see this picture." Asking the child to connive in her deception!

This little one has spent her whole life in an atmosphere of lies and deceit. How can she possibly escape its contamination? If we want our children to be truthful, the first requisite is that we be scrupulously honest ourselves. Of course, a mother is only one member of a household; but hers is the central position and her influence is the strongest.

At times children get into lying habits even when they have not been subjected to a bad influence at home. Then we have to look elsewhere for causes. Perhaps the child is lying because he is afraid of punishment. Maybe his lies are simply the result of a very vivid imagination. We must find out what causes our children to lie and then patiently help them to overcome this tendency. We have constantly to keep in mind that veracity is a matter of slow growth. But if we bring our children up in a truthful atmosphere and help them, step by step, to overcome all temptations to deceit, I feel sure that they will grow up loving and revering honesty and sincerity.

The Farmer's Advice

By Alfalfa Smith

ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHN, who usually writes very sensibly, takes occasion to make a few remarks about a popular motion picture actor in a recent popular magazine.

She says of him that he 'married the wrong woman." The authoress goes on to say: "All men are altered in some degree by marriage. Even if a man marries the right woman, his character and way of life must undergo alteration."

I might say that so far as I am concerned, I believe that no mate ever MADE any man and further, I believe that no mate ever hindered any MAN from being a success!

In short, I do not believe any woman can put any man out of business unless he wants to be put out of business. What is HE doing while SHE is putting him out of business?

As Will Rogers says: "Marriage is like a poker game—you have to play your own hand."

The actor must have played his hand well, for he is acknowledged a great success.

The woods are full of men who make their wives an excuse for their failures. BAH!

CALVIN GETS GARRULOUS

A CALIFORNIA interview with Calvin Coolidge:

"Mr. Coolidge, what do you think of our skyline?"

"The sky line is very pretty."

"After having been in both places, how would you compare California with Florida?"

"They are both good Republican States."

"Do you plan to settle in California?"

"I settle as I go along. That's the beauty of this budget system."

"What is the nature of your visit to California, Mr. Coolidge?"

"Thought I'd like to see the kind of State Hoover may settle in after 1932. It's in the nature of a duty call."

"Just what do you mean by duty call?"

"If duty calls, I'll expect California's electoral vote."

"Are you contemplating any work in the immediate future, Mr. Coolidge?"

"I may write a travelog for Cosmopolitan. I got my pencil and eraser along."

"What were your impressions when you saw talking pictures being made?"

"I thought it was a good idea. They spend all day working hard and only get three minutes' talk."

"Did you enjoy your experience as an honor guest of the Breakfast Club in Los Angeles?"

"Sure did. After serving breakfasts to Congressmen for seven years it was a pleasure to eat ham and eggs at some one else's expense."

"Is it true, Mr. Coolidge, that you threw away a half-smoked cigar butt?"

"Yes, but you'll notice I didn't throw away the coupons."

"What were your impressions of your visit to Mr. Wrigley's private island at Catalina?"

"Catalina shows every evidence of prosperity. The pelicans are diving and getting more fish per capita than ever before. The future seemed very bright as I looked through the glass-bottomed boats, and there's a bumper crop of marine flora and fauna."

"Did you discuss any future plans with Mr. Wrigley?"

"No. We just sat and chewed spearmint."

"What do you think of the London Naval Conference?"

"It won't do any good. When the talk's all over the only boat Hoover will have succeeded in scrapping is the Mayflower."

"How about the prospects for future peace?"

"They're good if nobody invites Dolly Gann and Alice Longworth to the same dinner. Otherwise it will be a four-year war."

"How would you go about settling the Gann-Longworth controversy if you were President to-day?"

"I don't know; but I certainly wouldn't appoint a commission."

"What do you think of Mr. Hughes's appointment as Chief Justice, Mr. Coolidge?"

"Well, with the Gillette people bringing out a new, improved safety razor, it was time to retire Mr. Hughes from private life."

"Did you read where the Prince of Wales traveled 100 miles to get an elephant and then missed him?"

"Yes, but I'm having better luck. I traveled 3,000 miles to meet the G. O. P. elephants and I'm not missing a one."

"Will you stop in Chicago on your way back to Massachusetts?"

"I will if the charity drive is all over."

A DISH A DAY

By Nancy Dorris

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

Veal en casserole, tasting much like young chicken, yet costing much less, suggests itself as the good meat dish promised for to-day. This tasty creation, including the vegetables for the main course, is a simple all-in-one that may be cooked in the morning or even the night before dinner is to be served.

Safe in its tightly covered casserole or baking dish, the chicken-like veal cares not whether the long, slow cooking takes place over one burner or inside a friendly oven. Gentle cooking to render the meat tender and delectable is imperative, however.

The family of two will find half the recipe suited to their appetite demands.

VEAL EN CASSEROLE

One egg, slightly beaten
Two tablespoons water
A sprinkle of salt and pepper
One pound or more veal steak
One cup cracker crumbs
Four tablespoons fat or drippings
Milk to cover
Bit of bay leaf
Three cups diced potatoes
Two cups diced carrots
Salt, paprika
Dots of butter
Cooking time: One to one and one-half hours at moderate heat
Servings: Five or six.

Peel the potatoes as thinly as possible and cut into dice, measure and set aside. Scrub the carrots and dice fine, peel and all. Likewise set aside. Roll the crackers on the board with the rolling pin or heavy glass.

Beat the egg with the water in a deep plate and season with salt and pepper. Divide the veal into serving portions and dip into the seasoned egg, then into the cracker crumbs. Heat the iron frying pan, add the fat or drippings (many people like bacon drippings) and when hot, put in the crumbed veal and brown well on all sides.

Arrange the browned veal in the earthenware casserole or glass baking dish and cover with milk; add the bit of bay leaf. Blanket with the diced potatoes and carrots, or a layer of carrots, and then one of potatoes for color's sake. Sprinkle with salt and paprika, also for color. Dot with butter and place the cover on tightly. Set over a medium flame so that the casserole cooks at a gentle simmer, or place in a moderately slow oven.

Let the veal en casserole cook one hour or one and one-half hours, when the meat should be deliciously tender and the vegetables perfect. If preferred, the casserole, uncovered, may be set under the broiler flame just before sending to the table.

Before the casserole a vegetable soup or a shell fish cocktail is a delightful first course. The salad may be celery and beet on chickory with an onion French dressing, and the last course cranberry betty with hard sauce and coffee black and fragrant.

"FIRST A SHADOW, then a sorrow"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—men who would keep that trim, proper form, eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the lithe, youthful, modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

DEVIL'S ISLAND SETTING FOR 'CONDEMNED'

Following close on his tremendous success of "Bulldog Drummond," Ronald oClman's latest starring picture "Condemned" comes to the Fox-California theater today for a two day showing.

It was produced by Samuel Goldwyn. Set as it is in the famous French penal colony of Devil's Island cast of stage and screen favorites, "Condemned" is said to be Colman's greatest picture.

Colman's role is that of a dashing French thief sent to serve a term in the hideous prison which the French call "The Island of Living Death." Opposite him in the cast is Ann Harding, noted Broadway stage star, whose stage performances in "The Trial of Mary Dugan" made her internationally famous, and who had been lately successful in her first picture, "Paris Bound." Louis Wolheim, favorite character actor, has another prominent role, as also has Dudley Digges, star of the New York Theater Guild.

A famous author and a famous playwright are responsible for the story of "Condemned" Sidney Howard, Pulitzer prize winner with his play "They Knew What They Wanted," adapted the story to screen form "Condemned to Devil's Island" last year's best-selling novel of life in the French penal colony by Blair Niles. Wesley Ruggles was director of the picture.

The fever-infested swamps which made escape from Devil's Island practically impossible, the sordid horrors of prison ships and squalid cells, combined with the growth of a pure love between a convict and a beautiful girl, give "Condemned" unique and picturesque qualities. Its settings, designed by William Cameron, Menzies, are said to be the most striking work ever done by this world-famous artist in picture esettings.

"Devil's Island, locale of "Condemned" is the prison where the most desperate French criminals are sent, mostly on life sentences, to live under conditions which doom most of them to early death. It came prominently into world notice some 30 years ago as the place to which Alfred Dreyfus was sentenced, and again before the war when Eddie Guerin, international crook, succeeded in making good his escape from its toils.

late, and there was absolutely no danger of pollution of the water. Hoffman said that by the factory running out a sewer about 800 feet, there was a strong tide flowing there of about two knots an hour, where it was an ebb or incoming tide.

City Attorney T. M. Carlson, informed the council that the proposed cannery had been taken up with the planning commission and that all of the details concerning it had bee nexplained to the members by Attorney Calfee. As the members of the council were conversant with the proposed industry, and had practically agreed that it would be an acquisition to the industries of the city, and as the planning commission members thought the same, he did not see where there was any chance for objection. It was Carlson's opinion, that it was not the intention of the council or the planning commission to hinder or retard the location of new industries here, but on the other hand to encourage them in any legitimate way possible.

To Pack Fish, Fruit

Calfee has stated to the council that the new cannery will be for canning and packing fish and other sea products, to manufacture fertilizer from organic matter, to manufacture fish oil and fish meal, to manufacture stock and poultry food from fish, to establish a can factory and other allied industries, to establish a cannery to can, pack and preserve fruits, vegetables and berries, to extract fruit, vegetable and berry juices and to can and pack the same.

The method of operation of the cannery will be the latest modern machinery. There will be six or more retorts, 17 feet long and five feet in diameter, six or more packing tables, cutting machines, latest machinery for saving refuse and fish oil so there will be no equivalent, will be used to make equivalent, wil lbe used to make fertilizer, two or more boilers with capacity of 150 pounds each, and such other machinery as will make this cannery one of the most modern in the country.

The buildings to house the industries are to be steel frame and corrugated iron walls, cement floor; one main drain; centrifugal pumps to segregate, water, fish oil and refuse.

The proposed site is described as follows:

Lot 6, Sect. 9, Tidelands containing 7.88 acres of land and the title of said property stands in the name of the Wells-Fargo Bank and Union Trust company and adjoins Pt. Malotte on the south and is close to Winehaven and is 4.2 miles distant from Sixth and Macdonald avenue.

The fish cannery will be operated during fishing season and the allied industries or other canning departments to be operated during the fruit, vegetable and berry season and the can factory to be operated practically the year round.

Is An Ally

Hoover said in part:

You have met in the special interest of boys. I am a willing ally in that respect. There is no feeling of exclusion of their sisters from our concern, but their similar problems are to be considered elsewhere.

"Together with his sister, the boy is the most precious possession of the American home. I sometimes think that one of the sad things of life is that they will grow up. Literature and lore have established our boys in varied relations of life: as a growing superlative promise, to be fed and watered and kept warm; as a periodic nuisance; as a joy forever; as the incarnation of restriction; as the father of the man; as the child of iniquity; as the problem of our times and the hope of the nation.

"The problem that we are considering here is not primarily a system of health or education or morals. It is what to do with him in his leisure time that will, of course, contribute to his health and his education and his morals, but in the main what will direct his interests to constructive joy instead of destructive glee and will yield him constructive joy for the balance of his life.

Lauds Scouts

"The Boy Scout movement has opened for him the portals to adventure and constructive joy by revealing the lore of the frontier and the campfire; by establishing contacts with the birds and sometimes with the bees; by matching his patience to the deliberate character of fish; by efficient operation of the swimming hole, and by peeps into the thousand mysteries of the streams, the trees and stars. And, it is more than this. By the promotion of sense of sportsmanship it builds character, from contest and competition with zeal but without unfair advantage and without bitterness; restraint that remarks nothing of others which cannot be at once forgiven; willingness to subordinate one's self into the team work for the common aim—that is sportsmanship.

Through its organization our boys learn of discipline, they learn of unity of effort, cooperation and the democracy of play and work, they learn of the duties and satisfactions of service. All of these are the foundations of life, the basis of liberty and happiness, the safeguards against destructive joy in the grownup life hereafter.

New "R"

"We assure ourselves that the cures of illiteracy and the fundamentals of education are the three R's—readin', 'ritin', and 'rithmetic. To this we must add one more R and that is responsibility—responsibility to the community—if we are not to have illiteracy in government. The conviction that every person in the Republic owes a service to the Republic; that the Republic rests solely upon the willingness of every one in it to bear his part of the duties and obligations of citizenship is as important as the ability to read and write—that is the only patriotism of peace.

"That the idea of the Republic was created for the benefit of the individual is a mockery that must be eradicated at the first dawn of understanding. It is true that many of our schools have recognized this obligation. It is true that our teachers are guiding our children in the first steps of democracy, but I know of no agency that can be more powerful in support of this purpose that the Scout movement."

DISABLED VETERANS HUNTED

TOLEDO, O.—E. J. Tippett, chairman of the Lucas county council of the American Legion, has been directing a campaign to contact 2000 World War veterans, who suffered disability in the war, with the view of aiding them to obtain government compensation. Henry Herman, secretary, who is handling the claims, says 30 percent of the names published are drawing compensation, 50 percent are filed as new claims and 20 percent have no grounds for claims. About 50 new claims have been reopened.

J. C. Bray Gives Testimony Before Federal Grand Jury

Among the witnesses late today was Joseph Bray, one of the former bank employes under indictment.

WHAT ELSE COULD LOU DO? By Burris Jenkins Jr.

BURRIS JENKINS
BACK FROM MIAMI
BEFORE THE BOUT, MAGNOLIA TOLD ME: "THE AMERICAN PUBLIC DOES NOT WANT AN ACCIDENTAL LOW BLOW — DELIVERED IN THE HEAT OF BATTLE — IF THERE IS NO HARM DONE, TO SETTLE AN IMPORTANT BOUT — THEY WANT JUSTICE — AND THAT'S WHAT A GOOD REFEREE SHOULD TRY TO GIVE 'EM!"
LOU KNEW SCOTT HAD BEEN "FOULED" ELEVEN TIMES — THE LAST ONE IN THE VAN PORAT BOUT — SO LOU HAD HIS PRIVATE OPINION OF SCOTT — HE WOULDN'T SAY IT BUT HE SHOWED IT!
THEN, JIMMY JOHNSTON STATED EMPHATICALLY THERE MUST BE NO FOULS ADMITTED UNTIL SCOTT LAY ON THE CANVAS UNCONSCIOUS —
KNOWING THAT THE PUBLIC WAS EXPECTING A "FOUL OUT", LOU FELT IT HIS DUTY TO PREVENT A FAKE CLAIM IF POSSIBLE. THIS HE TRIED TO DO EVEN WHEN A WILD SWING DID COME FROM SHARKEY!
WHEN THE USUAL FOUL CLAIM OCCURRED, LOU DID THE ONLY WISE THING — TO WAVE JACK TO HIS CORNER AND GIVE SCOTT A CHANCE TO GO ON AS HE SAID HE WANTED TO DO — THERE WOULD HAVE BEEN A RIOT TO HAVE GIVEN SCOTT A TWELFTH FOUL!
WHEN SCOTT CAME OUT TO GO ON, THEN REFUSED TO FIGHT, MAGNOLIA COULD ONLY GIVE THE FIGHT TO THE ONE FIGHTER STILL ON HIS FEET. —

Last Holdout Joins Seals

MONTEREY, March 10.—UP—Full strength of the San Francisco Seals engaged in practice here today for the first time. The last holdout, Earl Sheely, came in unexpectedly and donned a uniform.

THRILLS FOR OUTBOARD FANS

The capsizing of several outboards and the puncturing of one of these light craft by an adventurous fly wheel caused plenty of excitement down at the inner harbor Sunday.

Two of the diminutive craft were caught in the wash from other speeding neighbors, while several large sized rents were caused in the framework of the "Comet" when a loose fly wheel flew into the air, narrowly missing the navigator of the boat. However, no casualties resulted from Sunday's mishaps, as the unlucky owners of the capsized boats luckily knew how to handle themselves in water as well as on top.

More than a dozen motor boats zoomed up and down the smooth waters of the inner harbor Sunday before an admiring crowd of more than 200 envious citizens of Richmond. There were boats on the Richmond inner harbor Sunday from Berkeley, Alameda and Oakland as well as craft belonging to local residents. The unequalled facilities of the local harbor are attracting an increasing number of outboard motor fans from other cities of the eastbay.

Races to be held on the harbor are being planned by the Richmond Motor Boat association for the late spring time. The club is also intending to construct landing floats to facilitate in bringing the craft from water.

L. A. Puckmen Defeat Shieks

Local Soccer Club Defeats Turnveriens

Richmond's soccer athletes emerged on the big end of a 2 to 1 score in a hectic clash with the Turnvereins of Oakland Sunday at Nicholl park in the first of the Eastbay Junior Soccer league cup tie battles.

Playing before one of the largest crowds to witness a soccer contest at Nicholl field, the local club displayed a variety of attack that gave a big surprise to the invading Turnvereins. Brain and Fewins wiggled through the Turnverein defense in fine style to garner one counter each for Richmond.

Earl Jester, Richmond goaler, was bombarded severely by the Oaklanders, but met the barrage with exceptional success. He covered Richmond's dangerous territory with a degree of speed that has rated him one of the stellar net guarders in the Eastbay Junior Soccer league.

Richmond has not lost any contests in which Jester has had the responsibility of keeping Richmond's goal clear.

Richmond's lineup Sunday was as follows: Goal, Earl Jester; fullbacks, N. Bracco J. Freese; right half, J. Baker; center half, J. Lems; left half, H. Long; outside right, L. Grice; inside right, Beswick; center forward, D. Brain; inside left, W. Fewins; outside left, E. Hood.

30 Girls Sign For Edith Tough Tennis Tourney

The Edith Tough matches are for gir's under 16 years of age and the John A. Miller tourney is open to girls between the ages of 16 and 18.

High Nine Meets San Leandro Team Here On Friday

The Richmond union high school nine will clash with the fast San Leandro nine Friday afternoon on the local high school diamond.

The local athletes showed a fast brand of baseball in the first game of the season last Friday when they met the University high boys. The Richmondites were defeated by a 9 to 8 score. Although coming out on the small end of the score in Friday's contest, the Richmond boys showed great possibilities of developing into athletes of the highest caliber. Bono, Lemon, and Eabich all had a try on the mound for Richmond high, and all gave promise of being substantial assets to the local high school outfit. Rosano and Ball are expected to give great aid to Richmond in their position behind the platter.

Richmond will have a hard team to tackle Friday. San Leandro boasts a strong nine that ought to provide plenty of difficulties for Ivan Hill's diamond cavorters.

The contest will start at 4 o'clock on the Richmond union high school diamond.

U. S. C. DEFEATS HUSKIES FOR CAGE TITLE

LOS ANGELES, March 10. — UP—University of Southern California won the Pacific Coast conference basketball championship tonight by defeating University of Washington 37 to 29 in the third and final game of a playoff series.

The victors had a fairly safe safe lead of 21 to 12 at half time and held it in the second half.

U. S. C. went into the lead at the start of the game and was never headed nor even tied.

Gardner, Southern California forward, proved the Huskies downfall, in the first half, scoring 10 points. Jaloff, midget Washington forward was checking him was benched but neither of his successors could stop the point getting in the first period. Gardner got 14 points tonight, and Caldwell, guard got 10. For Washington Swanson was outstanding and was high score with 16 points.

Rosenbloom Wins Over Johnson On Foul In Sixth

NEW YORK, March 10.—UP—Maxey Rosenbloom, New York light heavyweight, was awarded a questionable victory tonight over Larry Johnson, hard hitting Chicago negro on a foul in the sixth round of the scheduled ten round bout.

About 15,000 fans witnessed the fight. Rosenbloom weighed 173 and Johnson 174 1-2.

The crowd booed Rosenbloom loudly as he left the ring with a look of pain on his face, partially held up by his manager Frank Bachman.

The fight was about even until the end. Rosenbloom may have had a slight edge as a result of a strong rally in the fifth.

Johnson almost floored the New York Hebrew with a crushing right to the head just before the bell ended the fifth round. Rosenbloom ran to his corner with a worried look on his face.

The end came after 29 seconds of fighting in the sixth.

Motors Nine Defeats Dammo Club Of S. F.

The Dammo nine returned to San Francisco Sunday sadder but wiser after receiving a 9 to 5 defeat at the hands of the Thomas Motors on the First street diamond.

Vierra did the mound work satisfactorily for the local squad, while Bercaw performed behind the plate for Richmond. Although several of the veterans who have forsaken the Motors for the Coast league were replaced by comparative neophytes Sunday, the Motors still showed their old fire. They ought to be formidable in the finals of the Oakland Winter league next Sunday.

While the Motors were playing the Dammo nine in a practice game the Oakland Eagles and the San Leandro nine were batting in the semi-finals at San Leandro. The Thomas aggregation will meet the winner of Sunday's clash next week-end.

Dear Ed —

Everything looks gloomy. Dynamite is boxing in secret, practicing a punch he says his girl told him to use on Razbury. He acts as if he's cocoa and won't let me watch him work out. The wise ones are betting 5 to 1 against him and you know they usually cash in. A few Brodies are taking a chance that Dynamite may land a wild one, but I'm keeping my dough in the safe. It looks like Shrimel's pet is about to end all our championship hopes. Regards etc

The GREEN GODDESS
by LOUISE JORDAN MILN

Copyright, 1922, by Frederick A. Stokes Company

"The Green Goddess," starring George Arliss, is a Warner Bros. Vitaphone picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Forcca to bring his airplane down in the Himalayas, while taking Major Anthony Crespin and his wife Lucilla to their children in Pahari. Dr. Basil Traherne lands it in the hostile kingdom of Rukh whose English-educated Raja welcomes them cordially. They learn that three of the Raja's half brothers are to be executed in India for murder and are fearful of what it means to their own safety. Crespin is jealous of his friend. Traherne loves his estranged wife. The Raja tells them they are to be sacrificed to the green goddess.

CHAPTER XXII—Continued

Crespin sat down beside her, and took her hands in his. And she did not repulse him now. He was their father. In this unspeakable peril he was her husband again. And she turned to him with an agony of entreaty in her terrified eyes.

"Yes, yes, Lu," he said tenderly, "we'll think of something—"

"There's that fellow Watkins, Traherne suggested desperately; "we might bribe him—"

"Oh," Lucilla gasped, "offer him every penny we have in the world!"

"I'm afraid he's a malicious scoundrel," Traherne said, dismally. "He must have known what was hanging over our heads, and, looking back, I seem to see him gloating over it."

"You did not guess?"

"But he is English," Lucilla said fiercely.

"And a damneder cur than the 'master' whose feet he washes, if you ask me," Crespin muttered gloomily.

"Still—still—" his wife persisted, "perhaps he can be bought. Antony! Think of the children! Oh, do let us try!"

"But even if he would," Crespin told her gently, "he couldn't guide us through the woods."

"Oh," she answered passionately, "he could hire some one else!"

"I don't believe," Traherne said thoughtfully, "we can possibly be so far from the frontier as he makes out."

"How far did he say?" Lucilla exclaimed eagerly.

"Three weeks' journey."

"Yet they know all about things that happened less than a week ago."

Crespin bent down, and picked up thoughtfully the revolver he'd thrown down in his rage. As he slipped it back in his belt, all the electric lights in the room went down suddenly, and as they did, a hissing and chittering sound buzzed faintly out unmistakably somewhere beyond the room.

"What is that?" Lucilla whispered, startled. "What an odd sound!"

"Wireless, by Jupiter!" Crespin swayed in his intense excitement—his voice danced.

"That accounts for it," Traherne said. "They're in wireless communication with India!"

"Fools, not to have thought of it," Crespin muttered. "He would be!"

"Antony knows all about wireless," Lucilla panted, speaking to Traherne.

"Ought to!" the Major said grimly. "Wasn't it my job all through the War! If I could hear more distinctly now—and if they're transmitting it clearly—I could read their message."

"That may be our salvation!" exclaimed Traherne.

CHAPTER XXIII

THEY drew closer together—one, not three in their sudden hope, which tingled through the very room vibrantly.

"If we could get control of the wireless for five minutes," Crespin muttered, "and call up the aerodrome at Amil-Serai we'd soon bring the Raja to his senses."

"Where do you suppose the installation is?" Mrs. Crespin asked.

"Somewhere overhead, I should say," Crespin replied. And they hung on his simple words. The specialist had come into his own. Their peril and his special equipment made them look up to him.

"We must go very cautiously, Major," Traherne reminded him. "We must on no account let the Raja suspect that we know anything about wireless telegraphy, else he'd take care we should never get near the installation."

"Right you are, Traherne; I'll lie very low."

Suddenly noticing it, Mrs. Crespin flung the costly Eastern shawl from her. "And how," she demanded, "are we to behave to this horrible man?"

"We must keep a stiff upper lip, and play the game," Crespin insisted.

"You mean pretend to take part in his ghastly comedy of hospitality and politeness?" his wife protested.

"If you can," Traherne urged quickly, "it would be wisest. We must play the game indeed, and not lose a trick we can possibly help. His delight in showing off his European polish is all in our favor. But for that he might separate us and lock us up. We must avoid that at all costs."

"Oh, yes, yes—" Her words were almost a sob.

"You've always had plenty of pluck, Lu," Crespin said proudly. "Now's the time to show it."

She met his eyes more kindly than she often had of late, and nodded firmly. "You can trust me," she told him. "The thought of the children knocked me over at first, but I'm not afraid to die. Hush!" she whispered suddenly, as the lights went up suddenly, "the noise had stopped."

"Yes," Crespin said, "they've left off transmitting, and ceased to draw on the electric current."

"He'll be back presently, then," Traherne warned, flinging himself in an easy chair. "Don't let us seem to be consulting."

Major Crespin's face darkened with a new dismay. "Curse it!" he groaned, "I can't remember the wave-length and the call for Amil-Serai. I was constantly using it at one time."

"It'll come back to you," Traherne assured him encouragingly.

"I pray to the Lord it may!" Major Crespin muttered, as Rukh came back into the room.

"I promised you news," he said briskly, his eyes glittering, "and it has come."

"What news?" Major Crespin inquired casually.

"My brothers' execution is fixed for the day after tomorrow," Rukh replied slowly.

The Englishmen showed nothing, but Mrs. Crespin half rose, then sank back a little limply, as she exclaimed nervously, "Then the day after tomorrow?"

"Yes," the Raja answered her gravely, "at sunset."

For a perceptible, painful pause no one spoke. Lucilla Crespin sagged a little where she sat. The men did not move, still gave no sign.

"But, meanwhile," Rukh continued, "I hope you will regard my poor house as your own. This is Liberty Hall. My tennis courts, my billiard-room, my library are all at your disposal. I should not advise you to pass the palace gates. It would not be safe, for popular feeling, I must warn you, runs very high. Besides, where could you go? There are three hundred miles of almost impassable country between you and the nearest British post."

"In that case, Raja," Traherne asked perplexedly, "how do you communicate with India? How has this news reached you?"

"Does that puzzle you?" Rukh asked indulgently.

"Naturally."

"You don't guess?" the Raja persisted.

"We have been trying to," Traherne said frankly. "The only thing—" he hesitated, almost as if apologizing for so far-fetched a suggestion we could think of was that you must be in wireless communication?"

"You observed nothing to confirm the idea?" Rukh insinuated, watching them narrowly.

"Why no," Dr. Traherne affirmed. "Did you not notice that the lights suddenly went down?"

"Yes," Traherne owned promptly, but still clearly at sea, "and at the same time we heard a peculiar hissing sound."

"None of you knew what it meant?"

"No." The doctor made the admission as if half-ashamed of it.

"Then you have no knowledge of wireless telegraphy?"

"None," Traherne replied disgustedly. And that well done self disgust entirely convinced the Raja of Rukh.

"I may tell you, then," he said with a sort of suave, princely truculence, "that that hissing is the sound of the wireless transmission. I am in communication with India."

"You have a wireless expert here then?" Crespin asked incredulously—taking up Traherne's cue at last.

"Watkins, that invaluable fellow—he is my operator."

"And with whom do you communicate?" Traherne asked, as if he did not believe a word of the fairy tale.

SCRIBE FACES EXTORTION CHARGE

the three obtain about $500,000 from other men. The three, however, communicated with District Attorney Fitts and he made an investigation, including stenographic reports of supposedly secret meetings.

Both Lavine and Miss Johnson were booked at the county jail on charges of conspiracy to commit extortion.

The case will be presented to the county grand jury tomorrow, and Lavine, it was indicated, might appear before the jury to give a voluntary statement.

Miss Johnson, arrested in her apartment, laughed and expressed surprise and then became angry and said she had not commissioned Lavine to collect any money from Crawford. "It's just his alibi," she charged.

Miss Johnson came into prominence recently when she testified in a suit of Julian stockholders to recover $12,000,000 from brokers who handled Julian stock. She claimed she had been bribed by some brokers.

Scribe Lauded

Lavine is the reporter given credit for aiding the sheriff's office in arresting Clara Phillips, hammer murderess, in Honduras, after she escaped from the county jail here.

During the State Senate's investigation of a $2500 check given to Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy by Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist referred to Lavine as "one of my three deliverers" from persecution after her kidnapping.

The Julian case, famous because of the spectacular over issue of stock and loss to thousands of southern California people, also ended the brilliant political career of Asa Keyes, former district attorney of Los Angeles county. He was convicted of accepting bribes to conduct cases in a manner that would cause dismissal of charges against those held responsible for the collapse.

NEW CANNERY TO BE READY BY MAY 1

Probable completion of the new Filice and Perrelli cannery by May 1 was foreseen by Fred D. Parr of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce in an announcement yesterday.

Arrangements by which this company would come to Richmond and build a $350,000 plant were concluded last year and actual construction work on the cannery was undertaken shortly after Jan. 1. The building is now far advanced, according to Parr, and will be ready for occupancy in about 6 weeks for the canning of the 1930 crop of cherries.

The plant occupies 12 acres between Tenth and Fourteenth street back of the new Parr-Richmond terminal on the inner harbor and is served by the joint tracks of the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe. The thousands of cases of canned goods which will go out from the new plant to all parts of the country and the world will move over this terminal, as will all the Filice and Perrelli products from their other plants in San Jose and Gilroy.

The cannery will employ about 700 persons, mostly women, for at least eight months of the year, a substantial addition to the Richmond payroll.

Plans are under way for a welcoming dinner for the chamber of commerce to the officials of the new cannery. The latter have intimated that at the dinner they may have a new and interesting announcement to make concerning their further activities in Richmond.

WHAT CHANCE WILL YOUR YOUNGSTER HAVE?

THE NEIGHBORHOOD BANK
AMERICAN TRUST COMPANY

Experts in statistics say that . . .

With elementary schooling he has one chance in 40,841 of obtaining distinction in his business or profession.

With a high school education, one chance in 1,606.

BUT . . with a college education, one chance in 173.

From this, the dollar and cents value of a college education is clearly seen.

The cost of sending a boy or girl to college is a heavy burden if it must be carried from the current income of a family of moderate means. Systematic saving over a period of years lightens the load: $10 a month deposited in an American Trust savings account, with interest at 4 percent compounded semi-annually, will produce in fifteen years $2462 —enough for four years in college at $600 a year.
